VICTIMS UNIDENTIFIED

Trapped Mother Throws Son to Safety, Jumps, and Is Seriously Injured

Haines Falls, N. Y., July 14—Ten bodies had been recovered shortly after noon today from the ruins of Twilight Inn, an exclusive summer hotel at this place, which was completely destroyed by fire early today.

The bodies were burned beyond recognition. It was said that nearly all the victims were women.

State troopers who have been searching the ruins since daybreak said they would not be surprised if the dead list mounted to 20.

At least 20 persons have not been accounted for.

A half hour after the fire was discovered in the basement by the night watchman the building was a mass of flames.

Seven of the 20 missing persons were servants at the inn and slept on the top floor.

The ten whose bodies were taken from the ruins by state troopers were trapped on the stairs leading from the first to the ground floor. The stairs gave way and they were thrown into the basement.

The loss is placed at $200,000.

There were 46 guests registered at the inn yesterday but it is not known how many were in the hotel when the fire broke out.

Among the injured were Mrs. Sheila Martin of Jersey City, N. J., and her four year old son Peter. When flames trapped them on the third floor, Mrs. Martin threw the baby from the window and he was caught by men below, sustaining only slight injuries. Records Show Cities and Counties Get Bulk of Tax for Government Expenses

Federal Departments Require $27 Out of $100, States $27 and Rest Is Divided Between Municipalities and Counties. Average Annual Tax $100 Per Person

Washington, D. C., July 14—When President Coolidge told the Federal Government executives at the [illegible] semi-annual budget meeting that [illegible] in government expense [illegible] the Federal [illegible] than offset [illegible] state and [illegible] spent by the [illegible] Government of all sorts in the United States cost the people of this country approximately $100 each during the year. Of this amount the Federal Government requires about $27, the States require about $14 and city and county governments about $60.

Back in 1921 when the War expenses were still in process of [illegible] down the Federal Government was spending almost $60 out of every $100 of the total government cost in the United States. Since that time it has almost cut its expenses in half but the States and cities have just about doubled their outlay and the total cost of being governed has gone upward in spite of Federal [illegible].

Talks Plainly

[illegible] States and [illegible] The [illegible] Federal Government [illegible] which they [illegible] from the people. Today [illegible] increase of more than one billion dollars a year for four years in the expenditures by the States and their political subdivisions there must have been a corresponding increase in levies upon the people or in bonded indebtedness. There is cause for concern in this situation. It is fraught with grave consequences to the public welfare.

The President had pointed out to his subordinate officials that Federal economy has practically reached its limit. The cost of the Federal Government has been reduced from almost six billion dollars a year to around three and one half billions. The President thinks that is about as low as it will go. The Congress which recently adjourned worked in close harmony with the Bureau of the Budget and managed to keep the appropriations for 1926-7 substantially level with those of 192[illegible] With the steady decrease in the [illegible] and the [illegible] steady increase [illegible] interest charges [illegible] demand for more Federal activities and [illegible] the judgment of Mr. Coolidge and of General [illegible] Director of the Budget that the National Government is now riding at [illegible] fairly even keel [illegible] about three and [illegible] billions a year.

Local Cost Enormous

Meanwhile the States and cities and [illegible] are piling up increased expenses at the rate of an extra billion a [illegible] 1921 the Federal Government [illegible] have been reduced by [illegible] billion a year but state and [illegible] government costs have gone up by four billions. [illegible] one might say [illegible] billion [illegible] state and local [illegible] will begin to [illegible] at the rate of a billion a year.

President Coolidge is not given to strong language. If he were he might [illegible] some of it to the States and their [illegible] units. Being a reserved and polite person he merely suggests in effect: What is the use of our saving if the other [illegible] groups squander it all and more? It is something like the old family situation where mother and girls ask father to quit smoking and save money while they take a trip to Europe, buy a new car and fur coats [illegible] they intend that the money be used efficiently.

* * *

THAT IS AN improvement on the ancient method when each of the [illegible] would have led a selfish self-indulgent life and then separately, at the last minute, would have given money as a bribe to Providence in the hope of escaping hell and gaining paradise. The best way to achieve that result is to give to other men. The Lord does not need money.

* * *

JOHN J. HANLON of Chicago tells the national government he intends to get married, and wants "any literature on the government's ideas about marriage, particularly the size of the family the government wants one to have."

The ideal family is as many children as the MOTHER wants and can take care of, and every mother should be allowed to decide for herself how many.

Some small families have done wonders. Alexander the Great had no brothers or sisters. Caruso, on the other hand, was the nineteenth child. Napoleon was one of many.

* * *

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., wise man, will not allow his children to have their pictures in newspapers. He doesn't want them to "feel important before they have done anything worth while." He doesn't even want his children to know that they are very rich, which also is wise.

One of Mr. Rockefeller's children, asked to contribute $50 to some worthy purse, said, quite sincerely, "They must think we are Vanderbilts."

This child doesn't know that her father and grandfather could buy the whole Vanderbilt family every little while and not know the difference.

SOMETIMES Uncle Sam makes money. The big sugar men of the United States formed a sugar equalization board to control prices in the war. The government put in $5 000 000 and yesterday received from that board, which ceases to exist, a check for $11 000 000, making a total of $[illegible] 000 000 profit for the government on its investment of $5 000 000.

LET there be light and power, is the motto of New York City. That one American community uses five billion kilowatt hours of electricity every year, more than the total amount developed by all the generating plants in Greece, Denmark, Latvia, Jugo-Slavia, Poland, Hungary, Norway, Rumania, Turkey, Switzerland, Sweden and the Netherlands. Those 12 countries have 109 000 000 population, nearly twenty times the population of New York City, almost the population of the United States.

The people's use of electricity—power and telephones—is the measure of its prosperity and enterprise, if not actually a measure of civilization.

GERMANY builds first aid airplanes to take the injured quickly to the nearest hospital. Patients will be carried to and from the airplanes in padded hammocks. This country gave Europe the flying machine. Europe is teaching us to USE it.

* * *

H. [illegible] FOKKER, brilliant flying man from Holland, manufacturing planes here, has insured his life for $2 000 000 and pays high premiums because of the risk. This particular flier is worth many times $2 000 000. He built the machine in which Commander Byrd, fine young American naval officer, flew over the north pole with the financial help of Vincent Astor, Edsel Ford and John D. Rockefeller Jr.

Mr. Fokker ought to be working for the United States government and it ought to insure his life for $20 000 000—if money made any difference.

English Workers Have It On American Cousins When It Comes to Living Costs

[illegible]tors Can Rent House for Less Than Half What It Costs Folk in U. S.; Ford Prices Are Also Much Less, Comparative Figures Show

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

[illegible] D. C. July 14—Figures available here in a com[illegible] costs in England and [illegible] States indicate, that [illegible] as far on the other [illegible] at the present time [illegible] country in the days [illegible] George Wash[illegible] dollar across the [illegible] with their relatively [illegible] of them receiving a [illegible] barely equals a day's [illegible] mechanic are no [illegible] advantage as the disparity [illegible] all seem to show. They [illegible] in comparison with what American workers receive [illegible] they get a great deal more for their money when it comes to staving off the wolf.

$12 Living Wage

Twelve dollars a week would not be regarded a living wage [illegible] American worker. [illegible] unskilled laborer receives five to [illegible] that [illegible] and as a rule his earnings are supplemented by those of at least one other member of his family. Even then such wage earners in this country admittedly are hard put to it to make both ends meet.

Consider then the surprising statement that there are thousands of English homes supported on a wage of $12 a week and many maintained [illegible] for less.

The first item in the cost of living everywhere is rent or housing and it is in this that the most striking difference is found between costs in England and in the United States. Two dollars a week is the average rent paid by British working men's families according to a report of an investigation that [illegible] of the entire country and that is for families of five or more.

Great Advantage

It is unnecessary to quote rental figures in the United States to show the great advantage the British worker has in this one item of his living budget. [illegible] American worker who can house a family [illegible] for four or five times the average rental of his English cousins is fortunate and it is doubtful whether [illegible] survey in this country would disclose a single instance of a family [illegible] securing anything approaching adequate living quarters for two dollars a week.

In fact employers, economists and philanthropists who are seeking to solve the housing problem in this country have set as the mark of the utmost that can be accomplished in a city such as New York rentals of from eight to ten dollars per room per month—per room and not per house that will shelter a family of five.

Cheap Rents

Within five miles of the center of Birmingham, one of the great industrial cities of England, there is at Bournville one of the first garden city schemes inaugurated in that country. There the highest rent for model houses situated in a model community is with a few exceptions $2.50 per week and more than one half of the houses are rented for less than $2 per week. Tenants in the latter cases must pay the local taxe but that adds comparatively little to their weekly or monthly housing expense.

In a London suburb less than ten miles from Charing Cross model houses semi-detached situated in the middle of open spaces and each with its garden may be rented for $5 a week. Try to get a property at a like [illegible] that within ten miles of the City Hall in New York or in the suburbs of any American city. [illegible] houses it may be added are of six to eight rooms and with what the real estate people in this country [illegible] in their advertisements as [illegible]. What they may not have exactly what goes for all modern improvements in the United States they at least have baths.

Compare Costs

Two families each of three members with practically the same income [illegible] one a half hour from Wall Street in New York and the other a little [illegible] from Charing Cross, London, [illegible] compared their housing costs. The Englishman's rent was $21 a month [illegible] which he added $5 a month for heat. The American's rent including heat was $110 a month—a shade more than five times what the Englishman paid—and he had only a small apartment while the Englishman had a semi-detached house and a garden.

And just to make the comparison of housing costs impressive be it added that in the country in many parts of England there are small stone houses of two stories each with a small garden that may be rented for the equivalent of 75 cents a week. Before the World War they rented for [illegible] cents a week. Sleeping quarters on a park bench cost more than that in the United States.

Food Much Lower

Difference in food costs between the two countries is not so great as the difference in housing cost, but the Englishman has an advantage in providing for his table that will amount to a considerable item in the course of a year. He will pay from ten to fifteen per cent less for his meat, a third less for fish, a half less for potatoes, cabbage, lettuce and other vegetables, 10 per cent less for butter and [illegible] per cent less for cream. His eggs will cost him almost as much as they cost in this country but even there he will save four or five cents on the dozen.

A few New York and London prices that are cited show beef at [illegible] cents here and 40 over there, fish [illegible] cents and [illegible], bread [illegible] cents and [illegible], butter 54 cents and [illegible], eggs [illegible] and as strawberries were in season when the comparison was made it was found that the table fruit cost 24 cents a box in New York when it was selling for 12 cents in London.

Food Budgets

The two families of three members each referred to in connection with the rental comparison also made a comparison of their food budgets. That there were excellent housewives in both families is evidenced by their expenditures. For food and laundry the American family in New York spent $21 a week while the weekly bill in son in each family and in neither case London was $11. There was a grown was the cost of the luncheons for the men included.

It is not only the working people who have the benefit of low living costs in England. In fact it is stated that the professional man whose income is from 800 to 900 pounds a year—$4000 to $5000—has relatively a much greater advantage over his colleague in this country with a similar income. The Englishman will own his own home as a rule but if he doesn't his rental will not exceed $10 a week. The maid who assists in running the establishment will be delighted with a wage of £100 a year. The family will be able to entertain frequently, go to the theater and maintain a small car as luxuries and will save money every year. No American family can live on such a scale on a similar income and save money.

In the matter of automobiles it is recognized that Americans have a great advantage. Family incomes here make the owning of a car possible to families that similarly situated in England could not even think of such extravagance. And the British worker who came over here and visited a large manufacturing plant where a majority of the employes drove up every morning in their own cars would probably require the services of a physician to assist him from recovering from the shock.

RAILROAD WORKERS DEFY SUPREME COURT MOVE

Nearly 2,000 Employes Affected, Criminal Action Threatened Against Leaders

New York July 14—The Council of Railroad Workers of Greater New York numbering 1,905 of which 155 are motormen and switchmen employed on the Interborough Rapid Transit system early today defied Frank Hedley's supreme court move at their meeting in Manhattan Casino.

The complaint which was filed in the supreme court by the I R T seeks to restrain the men from striking, to enjoin the strike leaders and others from interfering with the men at work and to recover $2,000,000 in loss of revenue suffered by the company since the inception of the strike 10 days ago.

The strikers also sent an appeal to all members of organized labor asking them for their support.

At the offices of the Interborough it was announced that criminal proceedings would be instituted against the strike leaders if they continue to recruit followers.

The strikers discharged include [illegible]43 subway motormen, 203 subway [illegible] men, ten elevated motormen, 40 elevated switchmen, 91 power station workers and one towerman the only one of the 1 2 tower men on duty in the subways who according to the I R T joined the strike. Today the strikers were told to pay no attention to the injunction and it was pointed out to them that the union had twenty days in which to file their answer.

It calls for a peculiar talent to be a political leader as it does to be a poet, a scientist or an industrial magnate and none of them covets the other's kind of success.

The occasional references to the unemployed, we take it, are to the fellows holding political jobs.

It will not do to say the efforts of an efficiency expert are a dead loss under any and all circumstances; not, if he is bonded to deliver the goods.

Vacations seem to change mighty little with the passing years. It seems to take just about as much time as ever to recuperate from the effects of them.

The stumbling block in the way of a lot of those people who want to improve the human race is the rather general fear that they are seeking to use themselves as models.

The probable way in which the average wet will view the situation is that the Anti-Saloon league has expended $35,000,000 to raise the price of whisky to $16 a quart.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer intimates that the shipping board could please the country by shutting up shop and resigning. What! Give up perfectly good jobs right in the face of an unusually cold winter prediction and the price of coal what it is!

The Youngstown Vindicator remarks that "most of the wildcat stock is sold in districts where oratory still influences votes." Naturally. Where votes can be influenced, in this day and age, that's where the money is.

While Al Smith is in no sense of the word a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, if it were offered him he would accept it without causing the party to go chasing about for a platter upon which to present it.

Aimee McPherson holds out that she is a sort of modern Joan of Arc, but, unless her pictures do her rank injustice, she's not so fearfully modern as to be obtrusive in that respect.

Princess Louise says she is delighted with the home life of America. Let us hope nobody will embarrass her by sending her a directory of the women's clubs, the lodges, the noon-day luncheon clubs and the golf organizations of the country.

The ranking Democratic member of the house, Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, says the G. O. P. claims of economy are false. We wouldn't go that far, but when it takes $1,409,000,000 a year to run the government, it's a cinch that somebody has been spending money.

Will Hays has ordered drinking scenes and scenes depicting the manufacture of liquor, save when absolutely essential to the plot, and the ridiculing of prohibition cut out of the movies. Now if he will have his directors get away from the fool idea that virtue is possible only in cotton and that truth and honesty are incompatible with wealth he may some day get the screen more into line with life as it is. And when scenes glorifying the safe-cracker, the hold-up man and the bandit who become repentant and are forgiven in the last reel are eliminated, and the church is no longer ridiculed, the movies may become instruments for good.

The Prince and His Umbrella.

Word comes from across the Atlantic that Parisians, old and young alike, are carrying umbrellas. It has not long been so. Some months since, the carrying of rainsticks was limited largely to the aged and those in middle life. With the young Parisian of either sex the parapluie, as the French call it, was taboo, which was a source of grief to the thrifty French, who hold that the disinclination of the young to carry umbrellas caused alike a waste of money and time.

Instead of proceeding along their various ways in the event of a shower, the umbrellaless young men and women would stop at a sidewalk cafe and wait for the shower to pass, meanwhile sipping glasses of white wine or such other drinks as might appeal to them. The old folks worried, and expostulated with the young. The latter replied that carrying an umbrella was not good form, that the Prince of Wales never did it.

This explains how the prince happened to be met at the aeroplane landing station just north of Paris, on his way to Biarritz just before the general strike was declared, by a delegation of fathers and mothers, who, being introduced by a French dignitary, explained the situation to him. The prince at once called for the piece of baggage in which he carried his sticks and rainsticks and, picking out a big, old-fashioned umbrella, asked a cameraman to take a picture of him thus equipped and get it published in the Paris papers. And so it was done.

"Behold! The prince, he has the umbrella big!" youthful Paris ejaculated upon picking up a morning paper the next day. And today youthful Paris and the paraplaie are inseparable.

Some way or other, you just have to like that Wales boy.

Changes the Auto Has Wrought.

For years past there has been general recognition of the fact that the automobile has given the good-roads movement such an impetus as it never before had attained and, in the absence of the automobile, might never have experienced. But it has done far more than that. It has worked for a continuity of our highway systems.

Our attention was called to this some days ago by the opening of the great $30,000,000 bridge connecting Philadelphia and Camden, said to be the longest suspension span in the world. This mighty structure, 8,536 feet long, supporting four trolley lines, a fifty-seven-foot roadway capable of bearing 6,000 vehicles an hour and two ten-foot sidewalks for pedestrians, might not have been constructed for years to come, if at all, had it not been for the automobile. And it is not at all the exceptional case save in the matter of size. The automobile has inaugurated an era of bridge-building just as it has brought about the construction of great highways throughout the length and breadth of the land. It is but one of many big bridges, to say nothing of almost countless small ones, which have been erected to meet the demands of motor traffic, and several still larger ones are contemplated. In fact, preliminary steps for what is to be the giant of all American bridges have already been taken.

Till the automobile came, highway traffic was largely what we might call local. The people of Philadelphia and Camden might have placed dependence on the ferries running between the two cities for years to come had the gas age not arrived when it did. But the coming of the automobile served largely to wipe out distance. Highway traffic is no longer local. Today it is continental. The motorist travels from Maine to California, and from Minnesota to Texas. Ferry transportation of motors, under the very best conditions, is slow and tiresome; and this is an age of speed. Under ordinary conditions, the transportation of motor cars has been such as to cause motorists to avoid ferries after one experience with them. They have simply sought, whenever possible, some other way. Hence bridge building at points never before thought of is being considered today, and it is a fairly safe prediction that we are now at merely the beginning of a period of bridge construction such as we have never known in the past.

The auto may have many sins for which to answer. Unquestionably it has been an aid to crime, in that it has given the criminal a wider range over which to operate, a quick approach to the scene of his intended crime and a speedy get-away after its commission. Its toll in dead, and maimed, and pain, and suffering has been appalling. But it has brought to mankind many blessings, not the least of which are the great continuous systems of roadways which are not only bringing cities and villages closer together, but states and sections as well.

And we look to it to do one thing more. Already it is manifest that the automobile is working to reduce congestion in urban centers. We do not mean that it is reducing congestion of traffic, for traffic congestion is daily becoming greater. What we do mean is that it is reducing congestion in housing. Cities are spreading out. Business places may be going up into the air, but homes are spreading further and further away, a movement made possible by the automobile and good highways. And the time may be near at hand, far nearer than many of us imagine, when our main highways will be marked from city to city by a succession of homes, and thus the automobile will have accomplished in an unexpected way the movement "back to the farm."

We see that "another link with London of the long ago is broken by the closing of Birch's famous restaurant." Now if they will close the Cheshire Cheese and a few more old places of the kind, American tourists will no longer be expected to pay out good money for indifferent fare, served indifferently amid faded old pictures and plates and generally unsanitary surroundings.

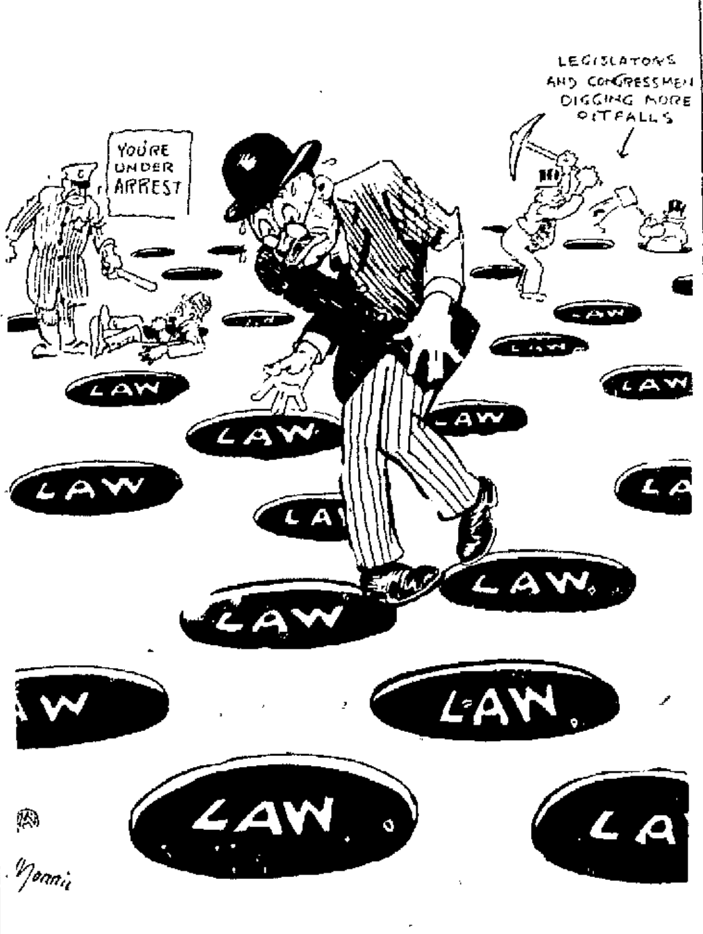
WATCH YOUR STEP.



Don't Wink at Finical Tastes.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Government does a lot of things. Many of these things are run to be criticized by citizens of one group or another. There are so many interests and such conflicting ideas that it is not to be expected everybody will agree to a governmental program.

In the debate over farm relief it was difficult to interest members of congress from great cities because they are thinking—and properly so—in terms of the consumer. The members from rural sections are thinking in terms of the producer. In consequence, there developed and always will develop, marked differences of opinion regarding farm legislation.

But when it comes to the care of babies and children there never can be any difference of opinion. Everybody must rejoice that a governmental agency is exerting itself to better the conditions of American youth.

In the department of agriculture is the bureau of home economics. From time to time this bureau issues bulletins containing advice and suggestions.

Its most recent observation is relative to the problem of feeding the child. I quote one statement:

"Eat it or leave it, as you wish," said the mother to her 'choosy' child! "There'll be nothing else until breakfast tomorrow morning, you know."

"She may have thought of him as a finical child; she may even have blamed herself for having 'spoiled' him. However, she explained his food refusal to herself, and she was a wise mother, to set out at once to break it up.

"The child who is allowed to leave his food on his plate a few times soon knows he has the upper hand. In addition to being naughty at the table, he asserts his right to rule whenever there is a difference between his idea and that of his parents.

More than that, one wholesome food after another is left off, and in time he begins to show evidences of undernourishment because he is choosing the wrong foods."

Of course, the bureau is talking about a healthy child. There are children who are indifferent to food because they are ill. But we will not talk about the sick baby today; it is the healthy but stubborn child we have in mind at present.

There can be no doubt about the danger of spoiling the child. It is a real danger. We can not be too careful to avoid the formation of unfortunate habits. In the matter of eating, a child will come to himself if he is given a little well-directed starvation. Don't worry if the little chap goes without food a few hours. He will not suffer physically in consequence and you are giving him a very wholesome lesson.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

F. J. B. Q.—What do you advise for pimples?

A.—The treatment depends on the source of the trouble. Meat, eggs and excessive salt should be eliminated from the diet. Have your doctor prescribe for your particular case.

Vagrant Verse.

LITTLE PATHS.

I love the little paths that twist
 Among the underbrush,
And wind where only wild doves' notes
 Sound through the woodland's hush.

I love the narrow paths that hold
 With briary grasp my dress,
Whose leafy fingers touch my feet
 With the lingering caress.

I love the little paths who watch
 The twilight veil the sod
And see the angels as they light
 Each candle star of God.

I love these little paths, for they
 Hear nightwind lullabies,
And see the glory of the Lord
 In western-tinted skies.

My feet walk the city street,
 My eyes may see its din
I may not hear the twilight's step
 Or the cricket's violin.

But in my heart close-clasped I hold
 The paths I used to know,
Decked with the jewels of the rain
 Or robed in spotless snow.

Who's Who and Why.

BRIGADIER GENERAL ALBERT C. DALTON

The new president of the emergency fleet corporation, Brigadier General Albert C. Dalton, has had much experience in organizing and directing transport services.

General Dalton rose from the ranks of the army, having enlisted on January 15, 1889. He was commissioned second lieutenant two and a half years later, attaining the rank of colonel in the regular establishment December 7, 1922. Meanwhile he held the temporary rank of brigadier general during the World war and was given promotion to that grade in the permanent establishment December 8, 1922.

General Dalton has served transportation units in many capacities including the army transport service, the Cuban expedition in 1898 and the Vera Cruz expedition in 1914. In 1917 he organized the Philadelphia overseas shipping depot. He was general superintendent of the army transport service, at New York from October, 1917, to November, 1918, including supervision of activities pertaining to the chartering, conversion, equipment and operation of vessels in the army transport service and allied water transportation activities; operation of docks, railway terminals and storage facilities utilized by the embarkation service in New York area. More recently he has been chief of construction, quartermaster corps.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

A man in Warren, Ohio, sleeps every night with all the windows shut, eats [illegible] and drinks coffee three times a day. He is ninety-two. Major George H. Putnam, New York publisher, plays a good game of tennis at eighty-two. Many men have died [illegible] after playing tennis at forty. [illegible] man who spends the most time [illegible] his health is likely to be [illegible] and. Sanitarium feeling [illegible] of symptom hunters and fakirs.

All of which goes to [illegible] grows older the more decidedly [illegible] to hard and fast rules [illegible] life is the occasion for [illegible] proportionate judgment.

Ages ago man was [illegible] with the struggle for existence [illegible] grow. Life had little play [illegible] passing centuries we have [illegible] least to waste time in the effort. There are, however, multitudes who do not [illegible] play intelligently. Some are [illegible] they would be taught a new [illegible] ing to note that the University of [illegible] giving a short summer course [illegible] Community leaders are told [illegible] people to play.

Despite this historic background of struggle which has made some folks so [illegible] to play, there are thousands who have become strangely proficient in the art of not working.

Here is a smart mayor. The mayor has [illegible] been elected to preside over the affairs of the city of Richmond, California. It is announced there will be no silly campaign against "hot" airs, bobbed hair, etc. And the mayor is a woman. She realizes there has been too much shouting at bugs in America and not enough elephant hunting.

The grand army of the republic, along with veterans of other wars, rightly makes a protest against changing the shade of red and the shade of blue in the American flag. This is a proposal of the fine arts commission in Washington. The flag is deeply significant just as it is. To make it a different flag is unthinkable.

For those who may be losing faith in the capacity of the human spirit to triumph over disaster, to be courageous to the limits of life, the report of the commander who raised the sunken submarine off Block Island will prove thoughtful reading. He said:

"Every man died a hero's death. They stood with their hands on the valves. Every man except those off duty was at his post.

"The periscope was turned aft, as if the man, in the right place, was looking back at the ship which had dealt the death blow.

"In the engine-room, bodies were at their posts.

"The rudder was turned hard right."

The words of the old poet, Seneca, quoted not long ago in these columns, come again to mind:

"Oh Neptune, thou canst drown me or thou canst save me if thou wilt. But whether or no—I will hold my rudder true."

The March of the Mutilated.

[Chicago Tribune.]

Paris has seen the march of the mutilated in protest against the proposed debt settlement with the United States. We do not regard it as a spontaneous expression from maimed victims of the war, but as a demonstration promoted by perfectly comfortable French millionaires who do not want to be taxed to pay back borrowed money and who hide behind the wounded as they did during the war.

The original plans for the march were modified to take out many of the proposed insults and offenses. The mutilated marched in silence and a wreath was laid at the statue of Washington and at the memorial to American volunteers who died in French service. The newspapers carried the insults which had been taken off the banners of the marchers. Criticism is not attached to the wounded. They have suffered. They paid heavily in the defense of their country. They may be bitter and they may be unjust. The promoters who hide behind them did a mean thing.

They insulted every marker which shows where an American died in France to keep France from being taken by the Germans. They have aroused in America a new bitterness and disgust. America could have a march of the mutilated and they could ask what was it for. The French victims are helped to carry their burden by the knowledge that their country was saved. The American victims see little but the failure of high ambitions.

The American dead are buried in a land which does not honor them. The French say they gave blood and America gave dollars, which now it wants returned. The French say they held the line in our war, and, having paid for us in men, are now required to pay us in money.

France is unfortunate. It permits its spokesmen to make enemies of its friends. It makes foolish wars and foolish speeches. Not long ago it needed friends. It may again. Another generation of Americans may forget the offenses to the United States, but it is unwise to charge history with the record of them and then trust to forgetfulness. We have forgotten the trickery of Vergennes and that Franklin was forced to break a pledge and make a separate peace with Great Britain. We have forgotten Citizen Genet and the indignation of Washington. We have forgotten Jackson's "I know those French. They'll pay if you make them." We have forgotten Napoleon III in Mexico. Another time we may remember that it is more dangerous to do a favor than an injury and that it is less unpleasant to collect indemnities from an enemy than your own money from an ally.

Q. How large do watermelons grow? H. C. C.

A. The department of agriculture says that watermelons grown in Turkestan along the Tigris river have under special conditions reached the remarkable weight of 275 pounds. In the United States melons weighing over 125 pounds are rare. Last year a record melon was grown near Hope, Arkansas, which weighed 136 pounds. It was shipped to President Coolidge.

Q. How is an aeroplane started when the engine stops while the plane is in the air? A. I. M.

A. An aeroplane engine having stopped in the air can not be started without a self-starter. This works on the same principle as an automobile with the engine choked. Sometimes a nose dive of sufficient distance will start the plane. However, this can not be depended on.

Q. What is meant when a vote is taken on a bill in the house or senate and some members are reported "paired"? L. C. P.

A. It frequently happens in the senate or house of representatives that a member is obliged to be away on important business. In this case he arranges with some member of the opposing party who desires to be absent, that neither shall vote on a certain measure. If such a member is not available some one who will be present consents to pair his vote. Therefore, the one who remains in congress abstains from voting or declares himself "paired" with the absent member.

Q. Do colleges in England have caps and gowns that correspond with the ones used by American universities? B. E. Y.

A. In the British empire each university has its own empirical usage in regard to academic robes, there being small relationship between the various codes, except in the shape of the caps, gowns or hoods. The colorings are unrelated except that red hoods indicate a doctorate. In the United States there is a uniform system adaptable to each institution.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, July 14—Nowhere is Manhattan's traditional bluff so apparent as at first nights. Premieres of plays and revues sustain [illegible] gotten as for the elect only. The [illegible] pay $50 a seat—as they did this summer—just to be among those in rows A, B and [illegible]

They feel touched by a glow of distinction. A theatrical premiere creaks with [illegible] atrocities that follow whipping a show into shape, but producers know the audience [illegible] not come to see their offering. They come to see each other.

It often happens the show is half over before the audience is fully seated. One comedian was so annoyed by the craning of necks and [illegible] and small talk that he quit in the middle of a line, sat down near a stage box and calmly read a newspaper until quiet was restored.

As a rule first nights are no more representative of what Variety calls "a class audience" than an upholsterer's ball. There will be a movie and stage stars, a social [illegible], song pluggers, theatrical costumers and the like.

But the vast majority is composed of [illegible] who want to be seen and feel a compensation for their $5 expenditure in being in the [illegible] of life. It is symbolic of the age-old [illegible]: "We are all other people to somebody."

Critics abhor these fourteen-karat openings, for they know it is really staged mostly for society editors. The performance often [illegible] long after midnight, and one several years [illegible] ran until 2 o'clock, when the producer announced he would serve ham and eggs to [illegible] remaining to the end.

New York's curiosity complex is great [illegible] evidence outside the theater at these [illegible]. The curious collect there before [illegible] so a police path has to be made from [illegible] the lobby. And first nighters enjoy this [illegible] moment of attention.

A desperate mother writes to a newspaper that her flapper daughter considers [illegible] proper hour to arrive home after an evening out with her beaux. And she adds she [illegible] arrives a bit tipsy. It used to be the bear[illegible] slipper on the floor above the parlor at 10 o'clock sent young swains whistling down a dark street.

* * *

The mother also adds the daughter [illegible] the young men of the neighborhood and prefers what she calls the "cave men" of Broadway. The term "cave man" is now applied to dissolute rounders who consider a woman just another experience. It was coined by Jack London in penning a description of the Jeffries-Johnson prize fight.

Once in a while the speak-easies are a little too daring. One recently opened in the Fashionable Fifties as a French cafe and was to cater to those Manhattan wise. Cocktails were shaken at the table in continental fashion and the wine waiters even wore black aprons like the sommelier of France. It is said $30,000 was spent dolling it up in bizarre fashion. It was raided the fourth night. And that finished it.

* * *

Perhaps the most persistent of all speak-easies, finally to be padlocked, was a place called Bernaise, in Forty-Sixth street. It ran for several years with a crew of bartenders on duty at all hours. Upstairs was an innocent little dining place. I dined there once like a yokel. But the initiated passed through a door into a kitchen, through a store room, and came upon a bar operated in full blast with a salon beyond in which were deep-cushioned wall divans and tables dotted with frosty silver wine buckets.—Copyright, 1926.

Today's Worst Story.

BY WILL ROGERS

The worst story I heard today was told to me by Mr. Selfridge. Now all of you who have been to England know who Selfridge is. He is the big merchant over there that come from America and went over and showed the English how to display and merchandise goods. He sat next to me at a dinner the other night at the American club in London, and he is a very fine; plain, as every big man is, dandy kind of a fellow. He is still thoroughly American. He is a great friend of Ziegfeld, by the way, and Ziegy had given me a letter to him.

It was a fine dinner, and even before the speaking started there was some preliminary stories. He told the following. The strike was on and this one had just happened, he said. They were appointing special officers. There was an Irishman and he was made corporal of a certain squad of these special police. His wife was all excited over the standing that would give the family now.

"Mike, will it be proper for us to let our children play with those nasty little O'Briens now?"

One of the little ones asked: "Ain't we all corporals now?"

"Shut up!" yelled the mother. "There is no one corporals, but your father and me."—Copyright, 1926.

SON OF PREACHER, NOT EVANGELIST, IS DEAD

Seth Rees, Jr., died July 7 at Greensboro, N. C., instead of his aged father, Seth Rees, as The Star was informed yesterday. The body was taken to Pasadena, Cal., for interment.

Rev. Mr. Rees and wife conducted a revival service at Chautauqua Pavilion, Garfield Park, two weeks ago.

NO STOP SIGNAL NECESSARY HERE

Urbana, July 14—There are worse things than even detours to hold up anxious motorists.

The Dixie highway, near Piqua, was jammed with traffic. Suddenly the machine in the lead stopped. Brakes crunched for a quarter of a mile back. The cars halted for a full five minutes but no one seemed anxious to proceed.

A mother pole cat with five young offsprings walked nonchalantly across the road, with measured tread, and there was not a driver who was not willing to wait as they crossed the highway.

Curtain Lowered On Life of Famous "Meller" Author

CHICAGO, July 14—Death lowered the last curtain [illegible] for Lincoln J. Carter.

The great impresario of the [illegible] dramas, whose "villain still pursues her" melodramas were known and loved all over the United States, died of enlargement of the [illegible] in a quiet little hospital [illegible] Ind.

Death came to him quietly [illegible] gently, like a curtain rustling [illegible] at the end of a performance.

Mrs. Carter was at his bedside as was his son, Lincoln J. Carter, Jr.

Tranquil and quiet were the last few months of his life, too. [illegible] though he knew, had been told, that he would [illegible]. He lived the last few months of his [illegible] home [illegible] on the banks of the [illegible] River, south of Goshen.

[illegible] an old-fashioned flower garden, he relived the days of his triumphs, when [illegible] were [illegible] and one could always tell the villain [illegible] by the sleek and glossy mustaches he wore.

[illegible] week or so ago when [illegible] he was taken to the hospital where he happy sunshine room he [illegible] awaiting the inevitable.

And so he passed on.

Time stands still when you pave with brick
VITRIFIED
Brick

TIME and all the ills that assail the surface of a highway are at a standstill when you pave with Brick.

Roads surfaced with Vitrified Brick are good for more years of service—UNREPAIRED—than you can eke out of any other material by constant patching and repair.

A little of its history is interesting.

Napoleon Bonaparte built it as a way of egress from France for his marching armies.

He, being an engineering as well as a military genius, assisted his military art largely by the roads he planned and built.

Good roads meant rapid mobility and mobility spelled victory to Napoleon, so he paved to withstand the pound, pound, pound of a passing army and he paved with BRICK.

That his judgment of paving material has been well vindicated is evidenced by this highway with its century and more of continuous service.

This is a good example of the wear and weather resisting properties of Brick, but it is not necessary to go to Europe for every illustration.

On this page appears a list of many old streets and roads in our own country.

A Brick surfaced road is hard yet elastic. With proper foundation you have a road that outlasts the bonds—that will be good for a generation of wear.

Then when it finally frays a little you can turn it over and use it again.

PAVE WITH VITRIFIED BRICK. When the detour sign comes down this time it will be down for many years to come.

Informative Booklets gladly sent upon request.

Old Brick Pavements in the U. S. A.

Can you name a single pavement in your own locality other than Brick that, costs compared, has given even 20 years of satisfactory service?

Note the years of continuous service on the pavements listed below and that tho built for another era of traffic they are still giving faithful service.

Springfield, Ill.	35 yrs.
Lincoln, Neb.	34 yrs.
Clearfield, Pa.	33 yrs.
Bucyrus, Ohio	33 yrs.
Cincinnati, Ohio	33 yrs.
Lynchburg, Va.	32 yrs.
Winona, Minn.	32 yrs.
Clinton, Iowa	32 yrs.
Towanda, N. Y.	31 yrs.
Cleveland, Ohio	31 yrs.
Joliet, Ill.	30 yrs.
Danville, Ill.	30 yrs.
East St. Louis	30 yrs.
Meridian, Miss.	30 yrs.
Sewickley, Pa.	30 yrs.

And the foregoing list, by no means, represents an exhaustive search for old Brick pavements.

AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

BARBARA: "I wish I could go in for sports like the rest of the crowd."
LOUISE: "Have you tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

IN spite of sunshine and country air a young woman in Maine was nervous and blue. She had many crying spells, was afraid something was about to happen and did not sleep well at night.

Mrs Frank Woodard
R. R. No. 1 Box 53
Levant, Maine

"For three months," she writes, "I was only able to do a little hand sewing. My husband's mother begged me to take the Vegetable Compound for she said it would help me. My nerves began to get more quiet. I took about fifteen bottles in all. Many in my home town, Springfield, Maine, know what the Vegetable Compound did for me."

MRS. FRANK WOODARD,
R. R. No. 1, Box 53
Levant, Maine

THIS young mother, a busy housewife with two small children, is one of the thousands who have improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Three years ago," she writes, "I had a nervous breakdown owing to weakness. I tried almost every kind of medicine without getting any better. One day I was visiting a friend and she told me she had taken the Vegetable Compound and she was positive I would improve if I gave it a trial. I did and I began to improve with the second bottle. I am always telling my friends of the good your medicines do me."

Week Day Bible Classes of Prospect Give Pageant as Season Course is Finished

Enjoyable Program Is Presented at Baptist Church, in Which 60 Children Take Part; Music and Readings Add to Occasion

Prospect, July 14—A graduation exercise was held at the Baptist Church Sunday night as the culmination of a two year week day Bible course and a three week daily vacation Bible School in which there were about 60 children enrolled.

The subjects taken up during this time were Biblical history, geography and missions. A part of the work done by the class was featured in the program by means of pageants, pantomimes and playlets.

The first was a pageant by the younger members representing Uncle Sam's responsibility to the world through missions.

The second was presenting to the youth of the church their responsibility to missions.

The third was a series of four essays read by Leola Hull, Harold Pearl, Ho[illegible] Baumgardner and Helen Cox, respectively, on the beginning of Sunday School work, foreign missions, American Baptist missions and William Rodgers the establishment of the Baptist Church in America.

EXCELLENT TALENT ON CHAUTAUQUA PLATFORM

Annual Event at Marysville Scheduled To Start Sunday, Many Tickets Sold

Marysville, July 14—This year's annual Chautauqua opens here Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The first number on the program will be a concert by Shuler's Orchestral Sextet and a lecture by Chandra Sena Gooneratne, a native of India. Other numbers on the program are two plays by the Metropolitan Players, several lectures by William Rainey Bennett and concerts by two well known musical companies. One of these, Bachman's Million Dollar Band, is expected to draw one of the largest crowds ever to attend the local Chautauqua.

The various committees have been doing intensive work the last few days. The chautauqua dates this year come nearly two weeks earlier than usual. The first number is also given on Sunday in order that the weekly Saturday night jubilee may not prevent local business men from attending the session that formerly came on Saturday night.

Guarantors for tickets report their supply almost exhausted. As more tickets were in the hands of guarantors than ever before this would indicate this attendance at chautauqua will reach a new high mark.

Tetanus Develops Nine Days After Child is Injured

Lavon Pettit, 10, Residing Near Kenton, in McKitrick Hospital in Serious Condition. Slight Wound in Foot, Caused by Bone, May Result in Death

Kenton, O., July 14—Surgeons at McKitrick Hospital were doing everything in their power today to save the life of Lavon Pettit, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Verne Pettit, residing one mile south of this city. The boy is suffering from lockjaw.

On July 4 the boy, barefooted, stepped on a sharp bone while playing in the yard at his home. The bone penetrated the child's foot causing a wound which healed within a few days.

Yesterday the boy complained of severe pains in the head. He was rushed to McKitrick Hospital where surgeons announced that tetanus had developed.

Lockjaw had set in and grave fears are entertained for the boy's recovery.

GAMES ARE POSTPONED DUE TO WET GROUNDS

Bucyrus, July 14—The Twilight League baseball game that was to have been played last night between the New York Central second and the Colored team was postponed because of wet grounds.

The first of a series of five championship games to be played between a picked team of the members of the Twilight League and the New York Central first team, which was to have been played tonight, will probably be postponed because of wet grounds.

Yesterday the ball lay under several inches of water and it is doubtful if the field could dry sufficiently for the game to be played, according to a statement made today by Secretary Don Matthew.

Walsh Picks Delaney to Beat Berlenbach in Title Bout Thursday Night

BY DAVIS J WALSH

NEW YORK July 11—Jack Delaney will win the light heavyweight championship of the world on Thursday night. He can't miss.

They talk about this young man Berlenbach but the fact of the matter is that Delaney is a little too smart for him and will hit the great on the jowl with the greatest possible expedience and once hit on the jaw the rest will be a matter of convenience.

They say that Berlenbach is a smart fellow and greatly underrated but I want to know who the gent ever beat. He was in there with Mike McTigue and anyone can knock Michael over. He was in there with Slattery and Jimmy isn't the toughest citizen in the world. He stepped out with Stribling and that young man simply refused to fight his fight. Delaney will do none of these things.

As far as the writer understands him he will step out with a weaving left and a right cross which is nothing less than poison to any jaw that receives it. Berlenbach happens to have that kind of jaw. In order to land his left to the stomach—his best punch—he needs must lower his left. Once he does that little thing Delaney the smartest hitter in the game figures to hit the other man on the jaw before he hits Delaney in the stomach.

And in case Delaney is beaten to the punch there is this to remember. That Berlenbach is a deliberate killer and Delaney is a one punch man.

Delaney hit Paul on the jaw in the first bout and knocked him dead cold out. In the second fight he flung the same punch and Paul went down. He got up and according to the judges he won the decision. According to many at the ringside Delaney should not have got worse than a draw.

The writer is no prepared to say which man won the entire proposition revolving around the fact as to whether Delaney was in condition to go 15 rounds and whether Berlenbach had carried the fight through his aggressiveness in the last seven rounds. The main consideration as the writer thought was that Delaney had just recovered from two operations and was not generally believed to have the stamina that a 15 round bout would demand. He is supposed to have it now.

If he has the man who thinks he can go wrong is the man who doesn't know his own name. Jack Delaney is the best bet in the world.

With some [illegible] hours remaining before the sound of the bell sends them on their way Delaney and Berlenbach planned a day of rest today at their respective training camps. Delaney remaining a popular choice at [illegible]. Berlenbach the challenger will come in to New York [illegible] from his training camp at Summit N J, weighing slightly over the light heavyweight limit [illegible] pounds.

Delaney making the weight easily was expected to weigh [illegible] for the match having built up to this weight at his camp on the Housatonic river.

Present indications along Broadway were that the match would be the biggest betting proposition of recent years it being estimated that more than a half million dollars already had been placed on the outcome. Odds of 1 to 4 were being laid today that Berlenbach would stop the challenger while 1 to 2 was being asked on the latter's chances of scoring a knockout.

A capacity crowd of 25,000 is anticipated with a half million dollar gate.

Cincy Reds Retain Lead in National Loop, Defeating Phillies by 10 to 7 Score

Two Out of Six Hurlers Used in Game Prove Effective; Benny Karr Hurls Tribe to 6 to 1 Win Over Red Sox at Boston

THE Reds made hay while the sun wasn't shining yesterday coming through to a 10 to 7 win over the Phillies despite the fact that rain threatened to interrupt the game several times during the proceedings.

The wet ball may have had something to do with the inferior work of the pitchers on both sides for only two of the six hurlers used showed the slightest degree of class.

Pete Donohue who held a firm mastery over the Phillies for several years after he entered the league appeared to have nothing at all and was walloped viciously by the Fletcher brigade from start to finish.

Pete in Bad

Except in the second inning in which he managed to retire the side in order he was hit wantonly in every session and finally had to be shelved in favor of Red Lucas in the seventh when the visitors had come within a run of tying up the score in spite of the formidable Red lead.

On the other side Jack Bentley gave one of the wildest exhibitions ever seen when he [illegible] out of the ball in the first round long enough to put the Reds well out in front.

The Phillies had given him a two run lead in their half of the initial session and this looked as if it was going to hold when Zitzmann and Pipp the first two men up flied gently to Nixon out in the cabbage patch and distant center garden. But at this crucial period the left hander lost control completely and issued three straight passes which were gladly welcomed by the league leaders.

Pipp Hits Triple

With the bases clogged Hughie Critz came through with a single and Wally Pipp with a resounding triple so that four runs were over the plate on only two hits.

After this weird exhibition Bentley performed and pitched some pretty good ball until the sixth when the locals reached him for three more tallies.

The last two rounds gave Manager Fletcher a chance to display three of the rest of his staff. Jack Knight opened the seventh and pitched to only three men all of whom hit safely.

The Cleveland Indians got another sample of the high class pitching that has been theirs recently when Baldy Benny Karr held the Boston Red Sox to four scattered hits to win the first game of the series at Boston yesterday 6 to 1.

The victory put the Indians in a tie for fourth place with the Chicago White Sox who lost to Washington.

It was the second game in succession that the tribe has turned back the opposition on four hits. Monday George Uhle stopped the Yanks in the final game of the series with a quartet of safeties.

Wiltse Hit Hard

Harold Wiltse young Red Sox southpaw was ineffective all the way the Indians getting to him for runs in the second fourth seventh and eighth innings and running up a total of 13 hits.

George Burns kept up his terrific hitting that had made him one of the most feared men in the American league since he suffered a broken rib. Besides slamming out his thirty seventh double of the season in the fifth inning he got two other hits for a total of three out of five.

The venerable Jacques Fournier tied the modern record for home runs in a single game by clouting three circuits in a wild slugfest in which the Cardinals beat the Robins 12 to 10. Each team got 16 hits, Dauber showing their was no doubt as to his batting eye by collecting four bingles.

Hack Wilson's thirteenth homer of the season gave the Cubs a 2 to 1 victory over the Braves and put the Bruins in fourth place.

The Yankees played like Marionettes in a cross word puzzle contest and lost to the Tigers 5 to 1. The hitting of Fothergill and Heilmann featured.

Pinch hitter Joe Hauser's home run with one on base enabled the Athletics to down the Browns [illegible] to 2 and cut New York's lead to six games.

The slugging Senators beat the White Sox 11 to 0 and took third place away from the Pale Hose. Washington made 20 hits, Earl McNeely sounding the [illegible] with five bingles.

TRAVEL SAFELY

DO NOT give pickpockets an invitation to help themselves by having currency about your person.

Carry your funds in the form of travelers' check which are worthless to anyone but yourself.

They are redeemable at banks, railroad and steamship offices, large hotels and stores, etc.

If you are contemplating a trip, call and let us give you detailed information concerning them.

The Marion County Bank Company

'The Friendly Bank'

Established 1839 Center and Main

Our Aim

The aim of this Bank is to furnish to the citizens of Marion and Marion County a complete banking service.

The fact that so many of our patrons and friends tell us that they are satisfied with the manner in which their banking transactions are handled, leads up to believe that we are approaching our objective, that of unexcelled banking service.

Stock Exchange Brisk Affair; Several Bonds Jump to New High Levels

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Industrial stocks, strong; domestic bonds, steady; foreign bonds, steady; call money, 4½ per cent; grain, steady; copper, firm; oil steady; cotton, firm; rubber, steady; sugar, steady; foreign exchange, firm.

New York, July 14—The stock market was a brisk, bullish affair for the most part today and prices ruled sharply higher. In fact, several stocks were carried to new high records, notably General Motors which soared to 161 5-8, a high record for all time for this stock and a jump of 3 1-8 points from yesterday's close.

Other stocks rose in sympathy with the strength shown in seasoned stocks such as General Motors, Allied Chemical and Dye and U. S. Steel, the advances ranging from a fraction to several points.

Early in the afternoon a reaction set in and prices eased off, but the decline was not pronounced except in General Motors, which fell back to 159 5-8.

Higher Prices

Buying during the forenoon was of a substantial order and higher prices were inevitable. Wire houses received a flood of orders from the west, the sharp advance in wheat prices yesterday having encouraged bullish activity from that quarter. Trading was unusually active, sales to 1 o'clock this afternoon aggregating 1,253,200 shares as against 1,132,000 the corresponding period yesterday.

The activity in General Motors stimulated buying in other automobile shares. Mack Truck this afternoon was selling at 122½, an advance of 2½; Dodge Brothers was up ⅝ at 29½; Studebaker gained 1⅛ at 55⅝; Hudson Motor was up ½ at 57; Chrysler advanced ⅛ at 35 ⅝ and Stewart Warner gained ⅝ at 70¼.

Today In Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Most berries of the home grown variety were scarce on the local fruit markets today. Currants proved the most difficult for the dealers to purchase, and sold two cents higher than yesterday. Price today was 20 cents.

Other berries, raspberries and gooseberries, and cherries were not plentiful but sold at their usual prices. Red raspberries were set at 35 to 45 cents and the black variety at 25 cents to 30 cents a quart. A new cherry, a sweeter variety, appeared today and was marked five cents higher than the usual variety which sold at 15 cents. Gooseberries sold steady at 15 cents.

Plums of many varieties and grades have been announced on the local markets in the past few weeks. They sold generally by the basket at 15 cents.

Peaches also have been abundant on the local fruit counters. Quotations today were made at two pounds for 15 cents for the lowest price to be found. Others were 10 cents and three pounds for 25 cents. A few dealers sold their display by the basket. General markings on the basket purchases were 15 cents. A larger basket sold at 50 cents.

Carrots were being sacrificed on the appearance of an abundance of the vegetable this week. The quotation was usually five cents a bunch, while a few vendors sold at two bunches for nine cents. Beets were unchanged at five cents a bunch.

A special price on lard was made at 17 cents today. On the 47-pound can lots the price was unchanged. Twenty-two cents remained as the highest price on lard today.
